

ABSTRACT

It is disclosed a machine for the preparation of beverages, of the type comprising at least one dispensing unit that includes a removable collecting device. The access to the latter is through a window obtained in the envelope, and at least one covering element is provided that comprises sliding guide means complementary to those associated to the access window.